Jap Deportation

13

Editor, The Sun: Sir, — There seems to be two classes of opinion as to whether the Canadian-born Japanese should stay in this country after the war. In a letter tonight someone stated that the Japs should stay and be treated as human beings. It seems doubtful that they are.

I do believe that the Germans could be made into decent citizens, but never the Japs. Those who want them here should be made to live amongst them.

Someone who has been camping near the Japanese camp was told by a farmer that they can't even sell their eggs because the white people are buying them cheaper from the Japs. They have a beautiful site there and go past in trains, laughing and smirking at the white people. Why not? They're having a soft time of it here while our boys are being killed and tortured by their race and some of our people are practically paying them to do so by buying their produce. These people are as traitorous as the Japs. It's their type that want them kept here.

I believe in human decency, but only when dealing with humans, not beasts. If we keep them here they will rise up again and then God help us. I say deport them, every mother's son of them. Once a Jap always a Jap.

DOROTHY TURNER.
